

Bomb Girls Wins Gracie Award for Outstanding Drama

February 27, 2013

Muse Entertainment and Back Alley Film Productions are proud to acknowledge that Bomb Girls won the Gracie Award for Outstanding Drama in recognition of the show's superior quality in writing and production. Bomb Girls along with other national and grand award winners will be honored at the 38th Annual Gracie Awards Gala to be held on Tuesday, May 21, 2013 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills, CA.

The Gracies, presented by the Alliance for Women in Media Foundation and named in honor of the legendary Gracie Allen, recognize the realistic and faceted portrayal of women in entertainment, commercials, news, features and other programs. Bomb Girls takes place during WWII and tells the stories of women who risk their lives in a munitions factory in support of the European front.

“What a fantastic achievement for Bomb Girls,” said Michael Prupas, President and CEO of Muse Entertainment. “To be recognized with a Gracie Award® is a particularly special honor considering that the awards recognize remarkable women and that’s exactly what’s at the core of Bomb Girls—the stories of fearless women who pushed societal boundaries and stepped into power like nobody before them.”

“We’re delighted to be recognized by the Alliance for Women in Media,” said Adrienne Mitchell, co-creator of Bomb Girls and Executive Producer at Back Alley Film Productions. “This series honors the incredible stories of the sacrifices made by women working on the home front during World War II and we’re proud to bring these stories to life for younger generations.”

“We’re thrilled Bomb Girls received this award from the Alliance for Women in Media,” said Janis Lundman, co-owner and Executive Producer at Back Alley Film Productions. “The series depicts a very challenging and rewarding period for these women where the dangers from working with bombs went hand in hand with the pride of supporting their family for the first time while also answering the call of duty for their country.” Bomb Girls Season Two stars Oscar nominee and Golden Globe winner Meg Tilly (Agnes of God, The Big Chill), Jodi Balfour (The Sinking of Laconia), Charlotte Hegele (Sundays at Tiffany’s), Ali Liebert (Apollo 18), Antonio Cupo (Elegy), Anastasia Phillips (Stoked), Gemini Award winner Michael Seater (18 to Life), multiple Gemini Award nominee Peter Outerbridge (Lucky Number Slevin, Nikita) and Richard Fitzpatrick (The Boondock Saints, Survival of the Dead) as well as guest star and multiple Emmy Award winner Rosie O’Donnell. Season Two of Bomb Girls continues March 25th on Global in Canada and premieres March 27th on Reelz Channel in the U.S.

The series Bomb Girls is produced by Muse Entertainment and Back Alley Film Productions Limited in association with Shaw Media. The executive producers are Janis Lundman (Durham County, Bliss), Adrienne Mitchell (Durham County, Bliss), Michael Prupas (The Kennedys, Pillars of the Earth) and Michael MacLennan (Flashpoint, Queer as Folk). Mitchell is also director on the first two episodes and is co-showrunner and co-creator of the series along with Michael MacLennan who is also head writer. The show is distributed worldwide by Muse Distribution International.
