About *Bomb Girls – Facing the Enemy

It's Spring 1943 and the Battle for the Atlantic rages as an Axis victory seems inevitable. German U-boats patrol the ocean picking off ships, destroying much needed supplies and inflicting heavy casualties. The one hope the Allies have – production of newly developed sonar equipment – is moved to Victory Munitions when the British factories are bombed. Under the increased pressure to turn out more bombs, as well as work on the new secret sonar line, the women of Vic Mu – Gladys, Lorna, Kate, Betty and Vera – band together in a tight bond of support and friendship. Then, in the darkest hour of the war, a new and disturbing menace appears – a saboteur among the factory workers.

Bomb Girl Gladys Witham, a fiery young woman from privilege, is covertly recruited by Allied Intelligence to find the traitor on the new line. But she must spy on her best friends, co-workers and fellow agents, calling into question everyone and everything she has come to trust. Sworn to secrecy, how can she reach out to her friends for help? And without them, how will she find the traitor?
